

As you may know, a number of students from the 11th and 12th vocational classes have had the exciti

In order to familiarise the students with authentic English I therefore tried to speak my mother tongue as much as possible – the more difficult the language, the better!

I hope nobody was too confused, though... It was a pleasure to run this course and I hope the students have found it both fun and useful.

However, it was just a taster of the internship itself. Immersion is the best way to learn about a place and its language, and I'm sure that the city itself will be an excellent teacher for the students.

I wish them all the best in their endeavours. I am also slightly jealous of them, for they will have all the excitement of falling in love with the city (something I believe is impossible to resist) for the first time.

Henry Pyke