“Business for All” is an Erasmus+ project that took place between the 27th of August and the 2nd of Sep

The project has been coordinated, organized and hosted by International Projects’ Association “INPRO”

The first days of the project focused on getting the participants to know each other and on creating a friendly atmosphere in order to allow them to debate, discuss and take part in the activities in a safe space. We brought up the topic of what entrepreneurship and youth work means and how to work with young people especially from remote areas. They were also given some tasks to be completed by walking around the city of Rzeszow and by visiting a local business – KWADRAT – a co-working space which focuses on helping start-ups. These activities allowed them to familiarize themselves with the city and to get know the start-up reality of a small city in Poland.

On Tuesday, Bohdan Kamiski, a professional trainer introduced the topic of social economy and the participants, divided in groups, in light of Kamiski’s talk on social economy and their new understanding of the concept, designed start-ups which were useful for the local community.
